Successive provincial governments have always been reluctant to devolve powers to LGs the successive provincial governments have always been clustant of decentralize powers and empower the local governments as per the Constitution. Although, the same chairmen and deputy chairmen of districts and councilors belong to political parties.

LGs play a key role in the development and prosperity of the country and the development of villages, towns, and streets is the mandate of people elected on gross roots level. Moreover, this is a bitter reality that the members of the provincial assembly (MPAs) have always been reluctant to devolve powers to their own chairmen and councilors.

Assemblies job is legislation as councilors should construct streets. This is one of the underlying reasons behind bad governance and lack of access to policymakers. This is another bitter reality that military dictators have always empowered councilors, unlike successive fragile democratic governments.

To be precise, the Balochistan government needs to devolve powers to the councilors and chairmen of districts, municipal committees, and corporations without any delay.
