CM Bugti Seeks Report After Two Policemen Killed in Nushki

NEWS DESK:

Two police officers providing security to an anti-polio vaccination team were killed when unidentified armed men opened fire in Qilli Jamalabad area of Nushki district, Balochistan, Chief Minister Sarfraz Bugti said.

Bugti expressed deep sorrow over the deaths and directed the Balochistan Home Department to submit a report on the incident.

He condemned the attack on police personnel deployed to protect polio workers and paid tribute to the officers who lost their lives while performing their duties.

The chief minister also extended condolences to the bereaved families.

Police have launched an investigation to determine the motive behind the attack and identify the perpetrators.

Relevant authorities are reviewing all aspects of the incident, and further details are expected as the investigation progresses.

Bugti stressed that the security of anti-polio teams was essential for the successful continuation of the vaccination campaign, which aims to protect children from polio.

The chief minister prayed for the deceased officers and patience for their families.

Dr Abdul Malik Baloch Reviews BEEF Scholarship Programmes in Quetta

NEWS DESK:

Former Balochistan chief minister and Balochistan Education Endowment Fund (BEEF) founder Dr Abdul Malik Baloch has reviewed the province's scholarship programmes and educational support initiatives during a visit to the BEEF office in Quetta.

Dr Abdul Malik was briefed on BEEF's performance, ongoing education initiatives and scholarship programmes in Quetta. The organisation's scholarship system, merit-based selection process, student facilitation measures and efforts to ensure transparency.

The scholarship programmes include the Fully Funded District Topper Scholarship, which provides financial support to high-performing students from each district.

The Transgender Scholarship supports transgender students in pursuing education, while the Civil Shuhada Scholarship provides educational assistance to the children of civil martyrs. Officials told Dr Abdul Malik that BEEF's scholarship programmes are designed to help students continue their education and access better opportunities despite financial constraints.

Under the Fully Funded Sadiq Public School Scholarship, selected talented students receive full financial support to study at Sadiq Public School. The Cadet Excellence Scholarship provides educational assistance to outstanding students enrolled in cadet colleges.

BEEF also runs an Out of Province Scholarship for students from Balochistan studying at higher educational institutions outside the province.

The Partially Funded Scholarship provides eligible students with financial assistance to meet part of their educational expenses.

Dr Abdul Malik stressed the importance of merit, transparency and ensuring that scholarships reach deserving students.

He said providing quality education to Balochistan's youth was essential for the province's future.

During the visit, the former chief minister also inspected different sections of the BEEF office and reviewed its administrative and educational activities.

Pakistan's Climate Vulnerability: A Governance Dilemma

Zia Ud Din: Pakistan contributes less than one percent to global carbon emissions, yet it consistently ranks among the countries most exposed to climate-induced disasters. This imbalance is not merely an environmental concern; it reflects governance dilemmas rooted in a weak institutional coordination and limited adaptation planning.

Climate change is one of the most pressing challenges of the modern era, adversely affecting societies at multiple levels.

Rising temperatures, droughts, irregular weather patterns, sea-level rise, melting glaciers, floods, and water insecurity demonstrate its far-reaching global consequences.

Since these impacts transcend national borders, climate change is inherently a global challenge. Along with other developing nations, Pakistan remains highly vulnerable.

In 2024, Pakistan recorded its ninth warmest year in the last 64 years, with an average temperature of 23.52°C and rainfall levels 31 percent above the historical average. This highlights the urgency of collective international action.

For Pakistan, however, climate vulnerability is compounded by governance constraints. Fragmented institutional coordination, weak policy implementation, and limited emphasis on adaptation have reduced the state's capacity to respond effectively.

Consequently, the climate crisis in Pakistan reflects not only environmental stress but also persistent governance failures.

Climate change refers to long-term shifts in global weather patterns and temperatures, primarily driven by human activities. According to United Nations findings, excessive greenhouse gas emissions have intensified heat retention in the atmosphere.

Gases such as carbon dioxide, methane, and nitrous oxide have thickened the atmospheric blanket, largely due to deforestation, fossil fuel consumption, and rapid industrialization.

One of the most visible consequences of climate change is rising global temperatures.

The Copernicus Climate Change Service reported that average global temperatures in 2024 exceeded pre-industrial levels by 1.52°C. This warming has intensified heatwaves, prolonged droughts, and increased wildfire risks. Rising temperatures have also disrupted weather systems, leading to irregular rainfall, intense storms, and stronger hurricanes.

Another major consequence is sea-level rise. Oceans absorb nearly 90 percent of excess heat caused by greenhouse gas emissions, leading to thermal expansion. Simultaneously, melting glaciers and ice sheets contribute to rising sea levels.

According to Encyclopedia Britannica, global sea levels have risen by approximately 21 to 25 centimeters since 1880, threatening coastal livelihoods and infrastructure.

Climate change has also intensified water scarcity, a growing global concern. Pakistan is already a water-stressed country, and climate variability has further exacerbated this challenge.

A report by the Pakistan Institute of Development Economics places Pakistan among the most water-risk-prone nations.

Water scarcity places immense pressure on agriculture, industry, and households, undermining economic stability and food security.

Despite contributing minimally to global emissions, Pakistan bears a disproportionate share of climate-related losses.

The Global Climate Risk Index ranks Pakistan among the most vulnerable countries to climate change.

The 2022 floods alone caused an estimated economic loss of $40 billion and claimed at least 1,700 lives. More recently, monsoon floods in 2025 resulted in over 1,000 deaths.

Given these realities, climate adaptation is no longer an academic debate but a strategic necessity.

Mitigation remains essential to limit future warming through reduced greenhouse gas emissions. Transitioning from fossil fuels to renewable energy sources such as solar, wind, and hydropower is critical.

Equally important is adaptation. Since climate impacts are already unavoidable, societies must strengthen resilience. Investment in climate-resilient infrastructure, improved urban planning, and effective water management is vital.

Global cooperation remains the third pillar of climate response. Climate change transcends borders and requires collective responsibility.

Developed nations must honor climate finance commitments and support vulnerable countries in adaptation efforts.

For Pakistan, effective climate governance is central to resilience. Addressing financing constraints, strengthening legislation, improving federal-provincial coordination, and prioritizing adaptation over rhetoric are critical steps.

Climate change presents urgent challenges that demand immediate action. Without decisive reforms in climate governance and a strategic shift toward adaptation, Pakistan will continue to pay an unjust price for a crisis it did little to create.

Neither Capitalism nor Communism

Aziz ur Rehman Agha
The Cold War may have ended, but the ideological clash between Capitalism and Communism continues to shape global politics, economics, and international relations. Even today, global alliances reflect these old ideological divisions.

However, both Capitalist and Communist systems have failed to manage political and socio-economic affairs effectively. One system suppresses personal freedom; the other deepens inequality. Both carry serious structural flaws that make them unsuitable for modern societies.

This calls for a new, balanced approach — one found in the Islamic socio-economic and political philosophy, which follows a middle path between the two extremes.

The Flaws of Communism

Communism lies at one extreme of the ideological spectrum. It suppresses individual freedoms such as speech, press, and trade.

Historical examples from Maoist China during the Cultural Revolution (1966–1976) show how intellectual freedom was crushed — books and music not aligned with party ideology were banned, and private libraries were destroyed. Similarly, in the USSR, any deviation from party thought was treated as a crime.

Economically, Communism eliminates private property and discourages entrepreneurship. Without personal incentive, individuals lose motivation to innovate and work for economic growth. As a result, this system hampers development and limits prosperity. The severe restrictions on basic rights and freedoms make Communism unsustainable in modern states.

The Problems with Capitalism

On the other end

lies Capitalism, which has enabled just 1% of the world's population to control more wealth than the remaining 99% combined.

This system inherently promotes economic inequality, empowering elite industrialists while exploiting the working class. Under Capitalism, profit takes precedence over people — workers are overburdened, and ethical values are often sacrificed for industrial gains.

Furthermore, Capitalism's obsession with rapid industrialization and profit maximization has led to environmental destruction, resource depletion, and climate crises.

It prioritizes wealth accumulation over sustainability. These internal contradictions — growing inequality, moral decay, and ecological harm — make Capitalism an unfit model for an equitable, sustainable society.

The Islamic Socio-Economic Approach

Both Capitalism and Communism fail because they represent extremes — one suffocates freedom; the other breeds inequality. Islam, however, offers a balanced socio-economic philosophy that harmonizes justice, freedom, and social welfare.

The Islamic economic system allows private ownership and business freedom, but regulates them through moral and legal checks. The obligation of Zakat (charity) redistributes wealth, preventing concentration in the hands of a few.

Meanwhile, the prohibition of Riba (usury) ensures financial fairness and discourages exploitation. Together, these principles foster economic justice, social cohesion, and sustainable development.

Conclusion

Neither Capitalism nor Communism provides a complete solution to humanity's political and economic challenges. Both contain inherent flaws — one curtails human freedom, the other destroys social equality.

The Islamic socio-economic model, however, offers the ideal middle path — balancing individual rights with collective welfare. With its emphasis on justice, equality, and moral responsibility, Islam presents the most sustainable and humane political and economic philosophy for the modern world.

German Ambassador Meets Governor Mandokhail, Discusses Cooperation in Modern Sectors

QUETTA: German Ambassador to Pakistan Ina Lepel met Balochistan Governor Jaffar Khan Mandokhail at Governor House Quetta on Monday, with discussions focusing on bilateral relations between Pakistan and Germany, the regional political situation and matters of mutual interest.

Governor Mandokhail said there were promising opportunities to further strengthen cooperation and relations between Pakistan and Germany in various modern sectors. He said Germany had extensive experience and expertise in advanced technology, renewable energy, technical and vocational education and other fields from which Balochistan could also benefit.

Focus on Higher Education and Skills Development. The governor stressed the importance of benefiting from Germany's cooperation and educational experience to promote higher education in Balochistan.

He said the provincial government was focusing not only on quality education but also on developing technical and vocational skills in line with the requirements of the modern era.

Governor Mandokhail said strengthening the private sector was essential for creating better employment opportunities for young people.

He added that modern skills, vocational training and education and training programmes aligned with market requirements could play an important role in this regard.

He appreciated the assistance and cooperation extended by the German government to further promote mutual cooperation in higher education, vocational training, solar energy and other modern fields. German Ambassador Ina Lepel thanked the governor for the meeting and assured him that Germany would continue its cooperation for the welfare and development of the people of Balochistan.
